FOR UPCOMING HOLIDAY REMODELING

The night will provide an opportunity for area architects, interior designers, contractors, builders, and other allied industry professionals to learn about this season's upcoming hot trends in natural stone design and installation.

"September is an ideal time for our commercial clients to see first-hand the new and exciting trends in natural stone as their busy holiday remodeling season begins," said Tracy Streckenbach, chief executive officer of GerrityStone. "We are also using this special evening as our way of saying thank you to our clients for loyal patronage."

Gerrity's "Evening of Thanksgiving" will feature complimentary cocktails, hors d'oeuvres and entertainment, and an opportunity for professional industry networking in the company's stone design center. Invitations will be issued later this month.
